WHO USES PASSES ON RAILROADS.

THERE ARE RUMORS AT THE CAPITAL THAT THERE WILL BE PROSECUTIONS FOR VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW, BUT NOTHING DEFINITE IS KNOWN.

Tallahassee, May 13.—The House was moving along its routine way yesterday afternoon, quite happy and busy, working under the Light resolution introduced Tuesday, by which each member is allowed, upon the call of counties, to call up one bill out of its regular order, and had just disposed of Mr. Wall's bill providing for the bonding of members of Boards of Public Instruction and County Commissioners, when suddenly the peace and harmony of the body was disturbed by the request of Mr. Richbourg that the special committee appointed to examine the books of the Railroad Commission and report as to what legislators and State officers had violated the law by accepting passes from the railroads be allowed to present its report.

No one objecting, the report was handed in and read. It was to the effect that the resolution under which the committee was working restricted them greatly; that they had gone outside the restrictions placed upon them and made a more extended report than the resolution warranted, and would, therefore, have to ask permission of the House to read the remainder of the report, which consisted of a list of names of persons who had received passes, but who would not be included under the terms of the resolution.

CURIOSITY AROUSED.

There were cries from the members of "Read it all, read it all," and, upon motion, the list was read, the vote for this course of action having been unanimous. On the list appeared the name, among others, of A. C. Croom, who has, by law, the sole power to assess railroad property, and who had received passes during 1902, 1903, 1905 and 1906 from three different railroads.

On the list of State Senators appeared the names of Crill, Sams, McCreary, C. D. Wilson, and Jackson. Among House members were Watson, Malone, Zewadski and Gibbons. Many ladies, members of the families of State officials or members of the Legislature, were also named.

PROSECUTION THREATENED.

At the conclusion of the reading Mr. Alexander said: "As the report creates a political graveyard and will act as a monument, I move that it be spread upon the journal." To this Mr. Wells, of Leon, objected, on the ground that some of the persons whose names appeared upon the list were not actually in the employ of the State, and could therefore, not be said to have violated any law. Mr. Wells argued this proposition at some length, and was so far successful in his opposition that the report was finally, upon motion, committed to the judiciary committee's meeting jointly, for examination, necessary expurgation, and recommendation for further action. And now it is being whispered, not very loudly, but loud enough to be heard, that "somebody is going to be prosecuted for violating the law." The report of the judiciary committee, therefore, is awaited with deep interest, and a most uncomfortable feeling that "something is going to happen."

THE LAW IN THE CASE.

The law alleged to have been violated has long been on the statutes of the State, and in Article 7, Section 3034, regarding the regulation of railroads, appears the following:

"If any stockholder, director, president, or other officer or agent of any railroad or common carrier in this State sends, grants, or delivers any free pass over any railroad, steamboat or other transportation line to any member of the Legislature or salaried officer of the State, he shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars."

The law also provides the same punishment for any member of the Legislature or salaried officer of Florida who accepts any free pass over any transportation line.

WHERE THE HAIR COMES FROM.

(Charlotte Evening Chronicle.)

The hair the women wear these days is pretty enough, goodness knows, but there is always the thought—it is not theirs. Where does it all come from, is a question that has, perhaps, puzzled many a masculine mind. We have found out. It comes mostly from China. It is not taken from the heads of peasant girls, as is generally supposed, but the attractive coiffures the sweet darlings are wearing these days are built up from Chinese pig tails. In two years past, Hong Kong alone has sent 263,547 pounds of human hair to the United States. It is all pig tail stuff. When it arrives in New York, the importers take it in hand. They have a method of treating it by which its color and texture can be altered and then it is made up into switches, curls, bands and braids, for brunettes, blonds or red-heads—and that is where the pretty hair we see comes from.

BURN THE LEAVES.

Speaking of the wholesale destruction of our chinaberry trees through the state, in the effort to exterminate the white fly, an Arcadia orange grower calls attention to the fact that the white fly infests the leaves only of trees, and that it is supposed to be sufficient in a white fly infested grove if the leaves are, by spray or otherwise, removed from the trees and burned. This is the approved treatment in the groves infested. The chinaberry drops its leaves early in the fall, naturally, and if the leaves are gathered and burned there is no more need of destroying the chinaberry trees than there is cutting down orange trees so infested. Our horticulturists should exercise ordinary common sense before condemning the most beautiful shade trees of the South.—Arcadia Champion.

FORCED INTO EXILE.

Wm. Upchurch of Glen Oak, Okla., was an exile from home. Mountain air, he thought, would cure a frightful lung-racking cough that had defied all remedies for two years. After six months he returned, death dogging his steps. "Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery," he writes, "and after taking six bottles I am as well as ever." It saves thousands yearly from desperate lung diseases. Infallible for Coughs and Colds it dispels Hoarseness and Sore Throat. Cures Grip, Bronchitis, Hemorrhages, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough. 50c and $1.00, trial bottle free, guaranteed by all druggists.

Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland says the country is run by lawyers. Since Mayor Tom aspires to be always one of the governing body, he announces that he is going to apply for admission to the bar. The Mayor says he has studied constitutional law at odd times for the pleasure of the thing, and feels certain that he could pass the necessary examination. Mr. Johnson declines to be placed among the discards in any political shuffle.—Savannah News.

"The most merciless enemy I had for 20 years," declares Mrs. James Duncan, of Haynesville, Me., "was Dyspepsia. I suffered intensely after eating or drinking and could scarcely sleep. I am 70 years old and am overjoyed to get my health and strength back again." For Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Kidney Trouble, Lame Back, Female Complaints, its unequalled. TURPENTINE TRUST MEN GO TO JAIL

Savannah, Ga., May 14.—Overruling the motion in arrest of judgment offered by the defense, Judge William B. Sheppard this afternoon sentenced the five men found guilty of violating the Sherman anti-trust law in connection with the so-called turpentine "trust" case, as follows:

Spencer P. Shotton, chairman board of directors of the American Naval Stores Co., three months in jail and a fine of $5,000.

Edmund S. Nash, president American Naval Stores Company, $3,000 fine.

J. F. Cooper Myres, vice-president American Naval Stores Company and president National Transportation and Terminal Co., three months in jail and a fine of $2,500.

George Mead Boardman, of New York, treasurer of the American Naval Stores Co., $2,000 fine.

Carl Moller, of Jacksonville, Fla., agent of the American Naval Stores Co., and general manager of the National Transportation and Terminal Co., $5,000 fine.

Shotton and Myres were sentenced to terms in the Chatham county jail, Judge Sheppard imposing this punishment upon them because they had been before the court two years ago, entering pleas of guilty. At that time Judge Emory Speer, who presided, stated a term in prison would be imposed if they came before the court again.

LETTER FROM MRS. C. E. S. TWING.

Belle Vista Vineyards,

Westfield N. Y.

May 4, 1909.

Editor DeLand News:

It is by the law of contrast that we find out how we stand with ourselves, as to being happy or unhappy, comfortable or uncomfortable.

Before I left Florida letters from my northern home had informed me that the robin had been on duty for some time, and that was an indication that people could come north also, but when the writer landed at the home station there was a sense of chilliness to which she had not been accustomed, and the different kinds of weather that has been dealt out for the last two weeks, no weather prophet could foretell so they were safe in saying "changeable."

Winter has been flirting with Spring most outrageously and snow to the depth of eight inches has been reported from Jamestown and other places south of here and there was a great plenty here.

There have been several snow storms, many rain storms, fearful wind storms and regular July thunder storms. In fact, in Chautauque county several buildings have burned because of lightning.

Yesterday indications for today were Tuesday fair. Its after 9 A. M. and fair still. The girls and boys are in evidence tying up grape vines to the wires with feet encased in heavy rubber boots, but the sun is shining, and the work must be done, but all hindrances shall pass away, for surely the seed-time and harvest shall come.

A quaint old friend of the writer often says when she hears grumbling about the weather.

"Of all of you be still, the good Lord knows enough to make a Fall to fit a Spring, and He will tuck in enough good weather then to pay for all the trouble you think you are having now."

It's a fine philosophy and no doubt it's true—but some would say she had no risks to run her bread has always come some way from her daily toil, and she has faith it will continue while here and she feels satisfied what will be hers when she crosses that "little step of sea" we all must cross some time.

Her name will never appear as one rich in this world's goods, she has made no bequests—but she gives the very best of herself as she goes along. She has friends many of them among the poor, she gives them courage, she has friends among the troubled rich, she gives them hope.

In spite of climatic conditions vineyardists are expecting a fruitful season, the growth of fruit bearing wood being better than before for some time.

It is the great industry of the northern part of Chautauque county one can ride miles along the lake, and main roads and never be out of the sight of a vineyard except in passing through the villages, but closely linked with day dreams now are the orange, the Jasmine, the magnolia and the splendor of the dear old pines of Florida.

They had begun to call Wellington the Iron Duke. "Well," he said, after the first shock of it was over, "I'm not as hard a citizen, at that, as if I were a steel king." Still, he could not help thinking what an absurdity it would be for the sculptors to perpetuate him in bronze.—Chicago Tribune.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

There are very few people of even moderate intelligence who do not know that this is an age of great intellectual unrest. Vast changes are rapidly coming over the world, both in the thought and the out ward organization of society, results from the ght. And this movement is not confined to any one country, but is at work everywhere. Many countries are already far in advance of the United States, in many ways. And what is the object of this great world movement? Clearly, in so far as possible, equality of justice, and equality of opportunity, to all. The rich and powerful have tyrannized over the great mass of mankind from the beginning of time, and the "common people," in their ignorance, have loved to have it so. But now the people are beginning to think, and to act, toward putting a stop to this miserable condition of affairs.

Even in this country, where the silly worship of the plutocrat is carried further, perhaps, than anywhere else, a check is beginning to be placed on the enormous power for evil in the hands of great corporations. The arrogance of the "multi-millionaire," the successful "self-made man," is by no means carried to the extreme it was a few years ago. So far from the whole population bowing down before the "Money King," or "Queen of Society," who have successfully robbed their fellow men and women, people are asking "how they got their money?" And the people are beginning to make laws to prevent such robberies.

Everywhere in the world, we see the tendency to place the ownership of all public utilities in the hands of the government, as trustee for the people. This is a vast step forward. This system cannot but work for the common good, if administered by men of ability and integrity, patriotic enough in the true sense to put the public good above personal graft. It is a success, in thousands of instances. As one instance, the United States post office department. Who today would wish to go back to private posts, with their uncertainty and enormous postage? Yet if the government runs the mails with advantage to all, why should it not the telegraph and telephone, as in many countries?

And here in DeLand, who today would want to turn back the city water works to any private company? The Government, national, state and municipal, represents the people, and with intelligent citizens and a free press, can be trusted to carry out the wishes of the people, and act for their common interest. Every wide awake, ambitious city, capable of doing so, should own and run all its public utilities.

MARRIED OR UNMARRIED

Did you ever notice the difference between the man who has been married but a short time and one who has been married several years? You can always tell a young husband from an old one. When a man has been married a few months, you will generally see him working in the garden or fixing up about the house and while he works he whistles, or sings, or occasionally looks up toward the window to see if anyone is watching him. A year later he is still working in the garden but the smile has been exchanged for a frown and he occasionally looks up toward the house wondering why in thunder breakfast is not ready. Another year rolls by and his looks would sour milk, but he is still at work, stopping occasionally to kick the dog or throw a brick at the cat. The next year we find him sitting on the front porch, smoking a pipe, while his wife does the digging in the garden. Now just watch our young men, as one by one, they are caught in Cupid's net and see if this rule does not work out the problem correctly.

Tell me not in doubtful numbers
That the fly's a harmless bird;
For he neither sleeps nor slumbers,
Everywhere his song is heard.

He infects us with consumption
Typhoid, dysentery, too;
If you have the slightest gumption
Bid the filthy pest "skiddoo!"
